

7.6 6 Student welfare and pastoral support policy

7.61 Purpose

BIS is dedicated to best serve our students' needs, modelling them into mature and well-adjusted young adults, who will be confident and equipped to make a positive contribution to society.

This policy should be read in conjunction with Child protection policy, behavioural policy, safeguarding, health and safety, academic achievement, equality and inclusion.

7.612 Rationale

Pastoral Care is a core dimension of life of the school. It is defined as the system of roles, resources, structures, policies, programmes and processes employed to support the development of young adults. Pastoral Care is an integral part of our approach to a holistic education, which puts the educational, emotional and social development of the student at the centre of its learning values. This policy sets a formal structure for pastoral care, setting out clear and defined roles and expectations to ensure that every member of our school community has access to relevant pastoral structures and procedures.

7.613 Pastoral Goals

1. To provide a safe, caring and supportive environment for students.
2. To care for and support each member of the school community. Priority is given to the nurturing of teaching and learning relationships

7.614 Aims of a Pastoral Care Structure

- To clarify roles, responsibilities, tasks and procedures.
- To create links between all areas of the Pastoral Care Programme.
- To promote an environment which meet the needs of each student.
- To acknowledge and support each person's role in the school community.
- To nurture teaching and learning relationships.
- To recognise talents and abilities.
- To monitor progress at every level for the student.
- To act as an early warning system for the early detection of "at risk" students.

- To promote clear values that animates our school.

- To support an engaging curriculum, through related policies.
- To involve all partners in the life of the school.

7.616 Pastoral care procedures

Students

The pastoral system is organised into a year group system, which includes subject teachers, form tutors, key stage coordinators, Deputy Principal and the pastoral manager (Principal), and external counsellors. The whole system is overseen by the Pastoral manager, who is responsible overall for the pastoral care at the school.

Students are organised into tutor groups, within their year groups, with a tutor who may usually look after the group for the majority of their time. The first point of contact for students or parents should be the relevant form tutor, as they typically handle day to day matters and give advice where needed or requested.

The next point of contact is the Key stage coordinator, who oversees all the form tutors in their year group, and who typically handle a wide range of issues concerning student welfare and happiness, concerns over attendance and punctuality as well as dealing with discipline issues. Supporting all Key stage coordinators is a non-teaching pastoral manager.

The School also benefits from a strong partnership with outside agencies such as the Institute of Mental Health, department for Children and Adolescent Mental Health, the Educational Psychologist Service. The school also employs a full-time counsellor to provide advice and support at times of difficulty.

7.617 Induction programme for students

7.636 School counsellor

School counselling is a specialist role undertaken by those professionally trained in counselling theory and practice. It involves a trained professional forming a relationship with a student to support them with identity development, enhance their resiliency skills, and develop the resources to manage their relationships with others in their life. Effective counselling seeks to empower the student to develop their coping skills and make positive changes in their lives. It includes working with individuals, groups and families, and working at the interface between students and others around them who may influence their lives. Counselling activities of a counsellor within a school may include developing, helping and/or supporting the delivery of skill development programmes, as well as providing specialist advice to staff and the community and making referrals. Counselling activities may also include providing mediation between students, as well as between students and staff.

Where possible, the school counsellor will also be timetabled to teach PSHE to the year group, thus enhancing the relationship between the counsellor and student and promoting openness and trust.

7.637 Guidance Counsellor (Senior School)

The principal of a secondary school is required to ensure all students are provided with appropriate career information, advice, guidance and education to prepare them to join the workforce or undertake further training when they leave school. Students need to learn strategies that will equip them to plan and manage their learning and career pathways, at school and beyond.

The Guidance Counsellor provides for the needs of the students in the area of career guidance. The Guidance Counsellor is available to meet students in class groups and for individual consultation with students and/or parents on matters related to career advice. They liaise with the other staff members as necessary, in providing this support and guidance.

Relevant information and issues that require further attention will be passed to the form tutor, who can then contact the coordinator or school counsellor, depending upon the nature of the concern. The teacher will create a positive learning environment in the classroom which encompasses the development of the whole person.

Subject teachers will write weekly report on each of the courses they are teaching, with special emphasis on the particularly positive performance/behaviour of their students as well as on any concerns they might have about a particular students.
